CERGU working papers series

During 2012 the Centre for European Research at the University of Gothenburg (CERGU) will launch a new working papers series.

The purpose of the series is to communicate work in progress, not yet published elsewhere, to disseminate findings from ongoing research within the field of European studies at the University of Gothenburg. For CERGU researchers it will, as such, provide the opportunity for a publication outlet of preliminary versions of their research – such as article drafts or conference papers.

The series welcomes contributions from all disciplines, from various theoretical perspectives and both quantitatively and qualitatively oriented research. The papers should normally be in English, but depending on the subject Swedish and other languages may be used as well. They should be around 25-35 pages. The papers will be published electronically only, on CERGU’s website. They will be registered in GUPEA, which is the University’s database for publications.

CERGU will not edit the papers in any detail, but relies on the authors to submit texts that have a high standard in terms of both format and content. It may be work in progress, but the status of the work should be such that the provisional assumptions, conclusions and propositions can be reasonably defended.

We are not expecting CERGU researchers to write papers specifically for the CERGU WP Series, and hence there should be no extra work involved. Active researchers normally write papers continuously for presentations and publications. The WP Series is a way to disseminate this research fast and easy, without a long review process. But the WP Series should also not normally be the end station for the work, but a temporary stop on the way to a more high-ranking publication.

The papers should be delivered in Word format, as we will add a standardized frontpage before the pdf conversion. Paragraph division, headlines, font size, etcetera is optional for the author. It is usually good service for the reader if page number can be found in the footer and name of the author and title of the paper in the header on each page. There should also be a short abstract and 3-12 key words for optimal crawlability of the paper on internet.

When you want to submit a paper to the WP Series please send it to Anja Franck at Anja.Franck@geography.gu.se
